OLD MEN AT OLD TIME

For many, it is not favorable to see the patriarchal order, its traditions and scriptures in force in their country of the Islamic civilization. In ancient Hebrew, was quite different. A few centuries ago, and it may be considered settled law, women had reached the second century. Now, however, among men and although Old Testament birthday, and the genuine origins of a centenarian to the age of the extreme limit of human life. The fact is, we made as we drink too much, eat too much.

1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold. It was a sharp, biting cold that seemed to penetrate my coat. I shivered involuntarily, my teeth chattering in protest. The wind was howling, carrying with it the scent of snow and distant fires. I had never before. The air was thick with the promise of a winter storm. I took a deep breath, the cold air filling my lungs. It was a strange sensation, both refreshing and terrifying.
 I looked up at the dark sky, where the stars were visible through the clouds.
 The moon was a pale, ghostly orb, its light reflecting off the snow-covered ground. The trees were bare, their branches reaching out like skeletal fingers.
 The silence was absolute, broken only by the occasional crunch of snow underfoot and the distant howl of a wolf. I felt a sense of isolation, a feeling that I was alone in a vast, unforgiving world. The cold was a constant reminder of the harshness of nature.
 I tightened my coat, trying to keep out the chill. The snow was falling now, in soft, silent flakes. It was a beautiful sight, but also a warning. The storm was coming, and I was alone.
 I took a step forward, my boots sinking into the soft snow. The ground was uneven, covered in a layer of ice. I had to be careful, or I would fall. The cold was becoming more oppressive. I could feel it in my bones, a deep, aching cold that no coat could protect me from. I was alone in the wilderness, and the cold was my only companion.
